

ADJOURNMENT SIGNS.

Evidences That Congressmen are Thinking of Home and Fences.

NOMINATION OF CAPTAIN FOWLE.

It Goes Over, and This May Mean

That the Nominee Will Remain Undisputed in Office—Silverite Figures—Notes.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 27.—(Special)—It is easily to be seen now that Congress is on the eve of adjournment. There is a visible nervousness, a hurry, and an absent-mindedness about the various members which show that his mind is on his home and his fences, rather than on pending measures. All the talk and debate for the past few days have been on money matters—hundreds, thousands, millions, are expressions constantly being dinned into one's ears, either in House or Senate. Appropriations, pensions, claims, general, and adjacency bills, and every possible form of monetary transaction connected with the enormous governmental business concern has been and is being talked up and down in every conceivable shape. Memos and clerks, messengers and pages, run about in a most abstracted and headless-of-consequences sort of way, and even in the House and Senate restaurants, and particularly at the bars, there are more rapid luncheons, and drinks come faster and hands are more frequently and hurriedly shaken than during the ordinary legislative day.

The appropriation bills are nearly all passed, and will require but a short time to be finished up; the river and harbor bill upon which the President is hard at work will probably be vetoed, but it will just as probably be passed over the veto, and then comes adjournment, which may now take place on the 8th of June, as agreed to, or the 10th at the latest.

STATEMENT FROM MAJOR OTHEY.

Representative Otey, of Virginia, who, as chairman of the silver organization of that State, has taken charge of the sectional campaign, is following the example of the managers of the various presidential booms, and now gives out "statements" of the progress of the campaign, while he type-writes and sends to the newspaper correspondents and all conservative papers in Virginia from the standpoint of Mr. Otey.

"I will not probably be able to give out any statement for several days, as I will have to leave here to attend my ministerial election, at Lynchburg. This statement brings it up to last night, May 26. This morning gives some improvement in it."

Total number of counties, cities, and towns in the State, 118.

"Number which have already elected delegates to Staunton, 100.

"Leaving still to be heard from, 18.

"Already elected silver delegates, 1,002.

"Already elected gold delegates, 251.

"Total, 1,253.

"To hear from, 288.

ANALYSIS.

Circuit Court—A Destructive Wind Storm.

BOYDTON, VA., May 27.—(Special)—Circuit Court convened here to-day, Judge Samuel F. Coleman presiding. The docket for this term is a short one, and does not embrace any cases of importance.

The second annual Bibles conference, now in session at the Boydton Institute, is attracting large crowds daily.

Ladies', Shirt-Waists and Straw Hats are also beckoning to bargain-seekers.

SPOILATION CLAIMS.

Senate Appropriation to Pay Them Endorsed by the House.

ADDITIONAL TAX ON BEER, ETC.

The Proposition Voted Down—Fried-Cheese Bill Goes Over—Butler Anti-Bond Bill—Daniel Speaks on Silver.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 27.—A feeble effort or two to obtain unanimous consent for the consideration of private bills withered and died under the objection of Mr. Kem (Populist), of Nebraska, and Mr. Lacey (Republican), of Iowa, to call up the conference report on the bill to relieve settlers on the Northern Pacific railroad indemnity lands, and it was agreed to.

Mr. Cannon (Republican), of Illinois, called up the general deficiency appropriation bill, and addressed the House in opposition to the motion made yesterday by Mr. Mahon (Republican), of Pennsylvania, to concur in the Senate amendment appropriating money to pay French spoliation and war claims.

He said that early in the session there was passed a deficiency bill carrying about $7,000,000. The pending bill as it passed the House carried a total of $4,793,000. To this the Senate added $6,256,000. This, Mr. Cannon, asserted, was altogether the most extraordinary act he had ever known in all his experience in Congress.

Mr. L. Henley, of Williamsburg, arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg, arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W. A. Post, of Williamsburg, voted to-day for the majority, with undivided support for the minority.

Judge R. L. Henley, of Williamsburg,

arrived in the city this morning, and will remain until after the election. His son, Mr. R. L. Henley, Jr., is a candidate for Clerk of the Corporation Court on the Republican ticket, his Democratic opponent being Mr. D. G. Smith, the incumbent.

The principal interest seems to be centered in this fight, which will be very close, with the indications in favor of Mr. Smith's election. Mayor W.